Friends and supporters of the Army Heritage Center Foundation and the U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center (USAHEC) — we are glad that spring is arriving in Carlisle. The snow that has covered the Army Heritage Trail since January has melted, and we are preparing for another great spring and summer of school groups, family visits, spring and summer programs, and the annual influx of researchers. I hope you will find time to visit.

I invite you to wander through this newsletter that showcases the superb work of the Foundation and the USAHEC staffs. The Foundation’s education programs, under Jeff Hawks, continue to grow in quality and scope. He is reaching into the schools of the region, bringing to life the stories of Soldiers, and bringing teachers to the Center to discover how materials in the collection can improve history education in the schools. I am especially proud of his management of National History Day in Pennsylvania (NHD in PA) and glad that the Pennsylvania State Education Association will recognize his service to this program with their Adler Friend of Education Award this coming May. Please see his article on our continuing intern program and our inaugural summer camp program.

The USAHEC staff is also extremely busy as described in COL Matt Dawson’s update. Their challenge is the dual support they provide to the Army and to the public. However, on a daily basis, they meet the demands of both in superb fashion. The Foundation is glad that the quality of their work is being recognized publicly. The most significant recognition that they have received is their recent acceptance as the first Army archive and museum to become a Smithsonian affiliate.

Another important endorsement of their excellence comes from CSPAN who last visited “old MHI” back in 2001 and believed that they needed to return to the Center in 2014 to film and prepare a new show for American History TV showcasing the Center and its collections.

The Foundation is also appreciative that USAHEC is now open to the public daily. After a long assessment process and polling of visitors, the staff believed that seven day operation best supported all aspects of public outreach. We are also thrilled to announce that Army Heritage Days, the Center’s living history program on the Army Heritage Trail, returns this May 17th and 18th. Please visit both the Foundation’s and USAHEC’s websites at www.armyheritage.org and www.usahec.org for details on this and other programs at USAHEC.

The Foundation’s lifeblood is the support we receive from you — our members and donors. We continue to need your support as we work to raise the necessary funds to construct an additional gallery that will display Soldier art and rotating exhibits and provide additional multipurpose rooms that will allow the Center to host more public programs. We are pleased that our acceptance into the federal employee Combined Federal Campaign is starting to bear results. However, we have so much more to do to promote USAHEC, to build out the campus, and to enhance education programs. See our Development Department update to find out how you can assist. Please continue to join us as a member and, if you can, please donate. We need your support to assist us as we support "Telling the Army story...one Soldier at a time."

Also, please mark your calendars. The Foundation will host several events over the coming months. On June 21, the Foundation will help celebrate the Army Birthday as we again host the Army Birthday Dinner at USAHEC. On July 17, in cooperation with USAHEC, the Foundation will sponsor a new exhibit, Veterans: The Paintings of Nina Talbot. Nina is a New York City artist who brings a special perspective to telling Soldiers’ stories. We invite you to visit to see her paintings. Finally, this fall, the Foundation will again host our Annual Membership Dinner and Silent Auction on November 8. Please plan to attend, and help us build on our successes.

Development Update

Before we tell you about the Foundation's recent activities or upcoming events, we want to thank all of you again for your support and generosity throughout 2013. The Foundation would not have been able to host the region's inaugural Army Birthday Celebration; manage the National History Day state contest; honor Korean War Veterans; finalize the completion and transfer of our infrastructure construction projects, or facilitate numerous library and artifact donations last year without your help. Thanks to your past support, USAHEC made tremendous strides of its own. In 2013, USAHEC acquired two new vehicles for display on the Army Heritage Trail; unveiled three new exhibits; and earned the Smithsonian Institution's recognition as an affiliate museum — the first facility within the Department of the Army to do so! You can be proud of the impressive work being accomplished by the Foundation and USAHEC staffs.

GIVEDIRECT

Shortly after the release of our fall newsletter, the Foundation launched a brand new on-line donation service to more easily accept gifts by credit card. With just one click from the homepage, you may now contribute to the Build on Success or Annual Fund campaigns in any amount you designate. The system is secure, user friendly, and accepts all major credit cards.

GiveDirect is unique from other credit card handling services in that only certain charities are eligible to use the system. Most importantly, GiveDirect is a non-profit processor that absorbs its clients' transaction fees. The advantage of adopting GiveDirect is that 100% of your gift is transferred to the Foundation! Using GiveDirect reduces our costs and allows us to spend more of your donation on our mission. We urge you to try GiveDirect this year, especially if you are moving away from handwritten checks. Please note that the name GiveDirect will appear on your credit card statement—not Army Heritage Center Foundation.

COMBINED FEDERAL CAMPAIGN

The 2013 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) ended on January 15th. During the height of the open solicitation period, our staff used social media, direct mail marketing, and personal engagement to raise awareness of the Foundation's presence in this national fundraising program. The Foundation even sought support from federal employees outside the local community by attending the Pentagon's annual CFC charity fair in mid-December and advertising our charity designation code in the Army Times.

As you are reading this newsletter, we are beginning to see the fruits of our labor. Pledges from the nearly 200 independent CFC campaigns across the country are being tallied and reported daily. Though it remains too early to judge the Foundation's performance or know precisely how much financial support was provided, we appreciate the opportunity to participate in the CFC program. Once all the campaigns have reported and every pledge is counted, we will announce our final results. Keep an eye on our Twitter and Facebook accounts to hear more.

We have already begun our work on the 2014 CFC. The Foundation recently submitted its application for the 2014 campaign and already passed the first hurdle. We are confident that the Foundation will regularly appear in CFC and that we will improve our outreach efforts as we gain more experience. The Foundation will appear under the Military Support Groups of America federation and keep the same CFC designation code, 44284.

You can help us by getting the word out early and often of what the Foundation and USAHEC do to remind the public of the contributions of our Soldiers and their Families.

COMMEMORATIVE BRICKS

After a seemingly endless winter, the Soldiers Walk commemorative brick area is once again visible to the public. Now that the blanket of snow has melted, I encourage you to come out and see these testaments to military service greeting visitors as they enter the Army Heritage Trail.

Do you know a Veteran, but are unsure what to get him or her for the holidays? The Foundation continues to offer commemorative bricks as a way to permanently honor the Soldier in your life. Space is available if you wish to participate in the program. Proceeds from your commemorative brick purchase support the Foundation's mission to expand the facilities on the campus. For additional information, please contact Kristopher Ruth at dvlpasse@armyheritage.org or visit the Foundation’s website.

2014 SPECIAL EVENT NEWS

Save the Date(s)! The Foundation is pleased to announce that we will continue our practice of hosting two formal dinners at USAHEC this year. Given the excitement generated by last year’s decision to host our events at USAHEC — to better showcase the facility you all helped to create and expand — we are confident that this year’s events will be equally entertaining and well-attended.

Our first event, associated with the Army’s 239th birthday, is scheduled for Saturday, June 21st. This event will celebrate the service of American Soldiers and the history of our Army as well as provide guests an opportunity to explore USAHEC’s exhibits through a “Hidden Treasures” artifact scavenger hunt.

The second event, our 7th Annual Membership Dinner and Silent Auction, will again be tied to the Veterans Day holiday and is scheduled for Saturday, November 8th. As usual, this event will be dedicated to recognizing a Living Legend, supporters of Soldiers and their families, and those that have provided critical support to advance the development of the Center.

You are all cordially invited to attend both functions! We hope you will join us and see the impact of your support firsthand. We are currently accepting event sponsorships and silent auction items for our Membership Dinner. If you would like to make a donation to our silent auction or become an event sponsor for either dinner, please contact Amanda Neal at (717) 258-1102 or ahcfadmin@armyheritage.org for more details.

BUFFALO WILD WINGS FUNDRAISER DAYS

We are partnering with the Buffalo Wild Wings location at 6385 Carlisle Pike, Mechanicsburg for (4) four separate fundraising days. For any guest who presents our fundraising flyer during their visit, Buffalo Wild Wings will donate 10% of all food sales back to us. Our fundraising dates for 2014 are May 26, July 3, September 4, and November 11. If you would like to receive one of our flyers, please contact Amanda at ahcfadmin@armyheritage.org or (717) 258-1102. We will also be posting the flyers on our website, Facebook, and Twitter.

SPRING APPEAL

Your continued support is critical to the Foundation’s efforts to expand the Visitor and Education Center. We cannot advance the project without your help!

In early May, we will again request your support for the Foundation’s Annual Fund campaign. This capacity building campaign sustains the Foundation’s ability to perform its mission and raise funds to enhance the USAHEC campus and its programs. Since the Foundation depends exclusively on the generosity of its donors to fulfill its mission...our efforts to pursue a fully developed Visitor Center needs your support! Please renew your support when you receive our appeal letter in the coming weeks. Keep in mind that you may contribute to the Foundation at any time throughout the year by donating through our website or by sending your tax-deductible gift to our office. With your help, we can make 2014 another memorable year for the Foundation and the U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center.

DONATE NOW!
The Education Department contributes to the mission of the Foundation by providing educational materials and programs for students and teachers. Though our primary focus is on improving history education for students in grades 6 through 12, we also provide opportunities for students at all levels who wish to learn and support the Foundation's ability to reach out and tell the Army story.

Since the fall newsletter, we have been busy with workshops and in-classroom programs. In October, we hosted the first annual NHD in PA Student Institute. Twenty-five students attended the day-long program of instruction designed to help students improve their research and presentation skills. Students learned about the nature of research, how to write an effective thesis, and how to use evidence to prove their thesis. They also met with a panel of judges for a question-and-answer period on some of the more common pitfalls of the NHD program and even got an opportunity to step into judges' shoes and provide feedback on student projects from previous years.

We also expanded our Teaching With Primary Sources (TPS) program over the course of the 2013-14 school year. Conducted in partnership with the Library of Congress, this program introduces students to the resources at USAHEC through in-class presentations, lessons, and hands-on activities. In December, eighth graders in the Carlisle Area School District tried their hands at gathering military intelligence by looking at Soldiers' personal equipment to determine a Soldier's mission. Others discovered how Revolutionary War tactics and the limits of military technology of the era forced Soldiers to mass when they fought on the battlefield. Upcoming school based programs this spring will use primary source materials to allow students to study the Indian Wars of the 1830s and 40s and the American Civil War. Finally, later in April, we will again host a New York City based high school class at the Center for two days of learning and discovery using USAHEC's collections.

We have not forgotten teachers. Over the past several months, we have developed on-site programs to showcase the rich resources of USAHEC. For example, earlier this year, we hosted a workshop on teaching the Holocaust. So well received was this session that on May 2, local teacher and United States Holocaust Memorial Museum (USHMM) Fellow, Pete Mashinski will again present a workshop on Teaching the Holocaust using USHMM guidelines and materials from the USAHEC collection. Future workshops include Teaching World War I on May 30th, a workshop for National History Day in Pennsylvania on August 14th, and Teaching the Vietnam War on November 14th. Should Members of the Foundation desire, they are welcome to attend any of these workshops; just contact our office to register.

Our newest initiative is the H-STEM project, an effort to combine history with science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). Using the archival materials at USAHEC, we developed this new teaching and learning program for the Army Heritage Trail. We designed the signs in partnership with local schools to meet academic standards for multiple content areas. Funding for the project was provided by the G. B. Stuart Charitable Foundation. Production of the signs is complete, and we are awaiting the spring thaw to place them on the Army Heritage Trail in time for field trip season and Army Heritage Days in May.

By incorporating STEM standards, the value of USAHEC as a field trip destination for students is increased, and the signage allows teachers to address multiple content areas while on-site. For example, one set of signs examines the history of smallpox and General George Washington's efforts to limit the effect of the disease on the Continental Army. The signs include information about the disease, the discovery of the cowpox and smallpox vaccine, and the inoculation and quarantine procedures Washington employed. Teachers can use these signs to address academic standards for biology, health and safety, and of course, history. Other STEM signs invite students to calculate how much firewood Continental Soldiers needed to stay warm in winter and challenges them to use mathematics to bring fire from multiple sources to bear on a single target.

The beginning of the new year returns our focus to National History Day in Pennsylvania (NHD in PA) and the regional, state, and national completion. Our public promotion of NHD in PA began on March 9th with our fourth annual NHD in PA Showcase at the Pennsylvania State Museum. In cooperation with the State Museum, the day included a recognition ceremony and reception for the winning students from 2013 and their families. As an added benefit, the winning projects from the 2013 state and national contests, including our two national champions, will remain on display in the second floor alcove of the State Museum until June.

Since last fall, more than 12,000 students have been working to prepare their projects. Regional contests began in early March and will continue until early April. The State Contest will take place on May 12 and 13, at Millersville University where more than 1,000 students, teachers, parents, and community volunteers will attend to help select the 2014 Pennsylvania Delegation to the National Contest that occurs in June at the University of Maryland, College Park. Members of the Foundation and our community who wish to volunteer to facilitate student processing at the NHD in PA contest or to serve as judges are invited to contact us.

Foundation interns also continue to make substantial contributions to our programs. Danielle Bopp, from Penn State, is helping develop plans for the Soldier Experience Living History Adventure Camp this summer. Tom Kuegler, from Messiah College, is providing marketing guidance and compiling a report on our web presence. Luke Zampelli is developing lesson plans for professional development programs for teachers using USAHEC resources. War College spouse, Dyan Hooper has offered her valuable service as program volunteer, ably pitching in as needed, especially with preparations for our TPS programs. Also, Stone Hockenberry, our Schools-to-Career Intern from West Perry High School, is hard at work creating a website and documentary about his great-grandfather's service with the 19th Cavalry Regiment in World War II.

We are in the midst of selecting a candidate for the 2014 Ruth Fellowship. This year, we received more than twice the number of applications from graduate students of military history across the nation. The selected candidate will receive up to $1,500 to defray expenses for a three week research trip to USAHEC. The Ruth Fellowship is funded through the generosity of Foundation Board Vice Chair, Mr. Chris Gleason, in honor and memory of family members, Army Sergeant Robert L. Ruth, who served during WWII in the Pacific Theater as an Infantryman, and Captain Robert C. Ruth, who served in the Army from 1965 until 1970 as an Intelligence officer with assignments in Vietnam and the U.S. Foundation members interested in contributing to the Ruth Fellowship Fund or in establishing a fellowship of their own are welcome to contact us to inquire further.

Starting this July, we will offer students in grades 7 through 10 a unique opportunity to experience Soldier life through the Soldier Experience Living History Adventure Camp. This week-long program will engage students in hands-on activities based on historical U.S. Army training manuals, modified for safety and practicality. The camp will follow a narrative storyline as our campers train for and execute missions at the U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center. Interested students or parents should contact us.

And finally, the Education Department facilitated USAHEC's acquisition of the Brigadier General Anna Mae Hays collection. General Hays, a friend and supporter of the Foundation, is a Veteran of World War II and Korea and served in Vietnam on several inspection tours. She was Chief of the Army Nurse Corps and the first female general officer in the United States. Her collection is a significant addition to the historical record of the United States Army.

Jeff Hawks
Education Director
Team, I am amazed that enough time has passed for another newsletter, but it is great to be able to share the latest with so many people that actively support our operations and mission. Instead of a big introduction, let's get right to the story.

The most significant change to our organization occurred in December when we started to merge the USAHEC and U.S. Army War College (USAWC) libraries. Throughout this transition, we continued to provide great customer service, very useful bibliographies, and other services and products for USAWC students, faculty, and staff, as well as many others on-site and virtually. With the initial steps of library consolidation complete, we already see ideas for better coordination and responses.

The merger also sparked a great initiative that ensures researchers – using our “one library, two locations” concept – can see the library and archival holdings of both the USAWC and USAHEC library locations. We will expand this in the future and hope to reach a point where searches in our system show everything in our holdings – books, artifacts, weapons, photos, and so on.

The library team not only continued, despite retirements and departures, to provide quality services and made progress on the routine and behind-the-scenes work that is so essential. In one area specifically – information and knowledge management – the team continues to receive high praise.

The U.S. Army Military History Institute (MHI) team also supports researchers from around the world, answering requests for information, linking people and resources, and generally continuing to live up to their reputation for world-class customer service. In January alone, the team handled over 1,400 actions, supporting off-site inquiries and requests for information and assistance – roughly 30% of those were official assists for government customers. The cataloging team also set a productivity record this past year. In short, teamwork makes the difference in reducing backlogs and making new materials available for easy use. The team continues to learn and improve.

Of course, that teamwork includes the great work being done to process collections – paper, audio-visual, and photo. Researchers continue to praise the ease with which they can access and use processed materials. The Oral History team also continues to do great work on our collection and is glad to be working on General (R) George Casey’s oral history. We are also collecting General Robert Cone’s papers.

The Security and Classified materials team is getting a workout. We recently identified several issues that required attention; we took action, and we are working to ensure the right materials are available in the right ways. They also continue to process collections for declassification and are reworking internal processes, all of which should be largely transparent to customers.

Our digital archives is up and running, with material being added routinely. There is a lot to do, but we are off to a great start. The ultimate goal is to digitize all relevant holdings so materials are available for people who may not be able to visit. Digitization also serves to conserve materials because it will reduce the amount of handling and exposure. This will take years, but it is worth the effort.

Another effort that is taking (and will take) a lot of time and attention is the effort to re-look how we store museum artifacts. Our “Tiger Team” is busy in the museum – in fact, the team has already relocated over 10,000 items. In the end, this will help us acquire the right collections, outline needed conservation work, and save space in the storage areas for new items. It is also helping us learn more about the collection.

To that point, the museum team recently “re-discovered” two interesting guidons. One, from Company E, 1st U.S. Cavalry Company, is in one of our Spanish American War collections. This unit was next to the 10th U.S. Cavalry (Buffalo Soldiers) and the 1st U.S. Volunteer Cavalry, under Theodore Roosevelt during the action on and around San Juan and Kettle Hills. A note in the file states the guidon was present during battles around Santiago, Cuba from July 1-3, 1898. The other guidon was for Troop C, 1st Cavalry and, interestingly, both guidons are tied to Brigadier General William Carey Brown. Captain William Carey Brown commanded Troop E, 1st Cavalry at the Battle of San Juan, July 1-3, and participated in the siege and surrender of Santiago de Cuba, July 4-17.

Exhibits work continues at USAHEC. Last November, our art curators and graphic design team opened an exhibit, and are hopeful this will lead to publication in several states, as well as increased awareness about the Center in all states.

The HSD team, in concert with MHI and the Library, also provided numerous reference bibliographies and scanned materials to the Chief of Staff of the Army’s Special Study Group. We continue to actively support the important work of our Army in several areas, by providing analysis and historically significant materials to decision makers and staff officers.

The HSD team also continues to fill numerous roles – seminar historian duties for the USAWC resident course, teaching for the Basic and Advanced Strategic Art Programs, panel membership for the Air Command and Staff College, seminar leadership for general officer courses, and teaching part of the Military History Detachment Course at Fort Knox, KY for the Center of Military History (CMH).

The museum team also supported the retirement of the four-star Commanding General of Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) with a loan of artifacts for special displays at Fort Eustis, VA. This continues our great cooperation with the History and Museum teams at TRADOC. Our Museum Director also recently led a talk on “The Army Heritage Museum – Making the Connection.” The USAWC audience appreciated hearing about the Museum’s mission and our focus on Soldiers’ stories. We are also investing in people: four museum technicians will attend a Basic Museum Course at Fort Belvoir, VA. It is exciting to invest in the already great skills and abilities of our staff.

Speaking of great skills, the exhibits team is working on a couple of Improvised Explosive Device (IED) exhibits that should be ready soon. These IEDs are realistic and informative. We are looking forward to putting them on the Army Heritage Trail and inside the Soldier Experience Gallery. The great skills of our conservators and acquisitions teammates are also worthy of mention. They continue to ensure the availability of priceless artifacts and papers for years to come, as well as the acquisition of new items of value for the Army’s history program, respectively. Simply, the list of items conserved, acquired, and initiatives in these areas would fill the page.

The Historical Services Division (HSD) has been busy recently reviewing a majority of our “50-in-50” articles. The 50-in-50 project is simple: staff members picked a state, found a Soldier Story in our collection tied to that state, and wrote a short article on the Soldier in question. We are working to get the stories published. We recently got our first article published

Just after the fall newsletter was released in October, USAHEC was named as the first U.S. Army organization to become a Smithsonian Affiliate. Smithsonian affiliation offers museums and educational and cultural organizations the opportunity to have access to Smithsonian collections and resources. The goal of this program is to establish long-term relationships with affiliate partners to maximize the cultural and educational benefits that both the Smithsonian and the affiliate can bring to a community.

We continue to support numerous visits: Congressional Staff members, senior foreign dignitaries, senior retired and serving U.S. Army civilian and military leaders, and so on. We also are working several initiatives that will raise awareness about the Center, in and out of the Army. An example of one initiative was a visit from a Video Journalist with CSPAN American History TV. They taped one of our lectures, and they have committed to producing two features about USAHEC's mission, functions, and exhibits. In addition, we have a promise from a Pittsburgh reporter to do an in-depth story on USAHEC for readers in western Pennsylvania.

We remain committed to “Telling the Army Story...One Soldier at a Time” and can report that our partnership with AHCF has never been stronger. We look forward to continuing our close working relationship in the months and years to come.

Speaking of the future, Army Heritage Days returns this year on May 17 and 18. We look forward to one of our largest and most diverse events. Based on initial coordination and feedback, there is a lot of interest in participation and visitation.

Also, in July, we will partner with AHCF for a unique art exhibit in our gallery. We will be showcasing the art of a civilian artist named Nina Talbot. For several years, she has committed herself to tell Soldier stories in a special way. After interviewing a veteran, she paints their life story as a mural. Her exhibit Veterans: Paintings by Nina Talbot will open in July.

Our team’s long standing public programs – Perspectives Lectures and the Kleber Readings – continue with great support, and we recently picked up responsibility for the USAWC’s long running Strategic Art Film Program. Our veteran ambassador program is up and running, and we continue to support staff rides and other educational programs, official and public. Of course, we continue to support USAWC, Army History Program, other major commands, veterans, private researchers, visitors, and anyone interested in learning more about the history and heritage of our great Army.

Please visit our website, www.usahec.org, and check us out on social media – we would appreciate your help in building our online presence and reach.

Thank you for your support. One Team. Army Strong.

USAHEC Collection Update

In recent months, the U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center has received several donations of historical materials that help document almost every aspect of the history of our Army. In early January, we received a portion of the John C. Cook collection. Mr. Cook served with Company G, 5th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division during the Korean Conflict. After his service, Mr. Cook returned to a civilian career and ultimately served as the Head of the Art Department at Penn State University. Throughout his life, Mr. Cook has used his painting talents to overcome the sleepless nights he suffered as a result of PTSD. Mr. Cook donated 68 pieces of his artwork to USAHEC. His artwork depicts scenes from his service during the Korean Conflict with the 1st Cavalry Division.

Robert Perdue was a platoon leader with the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment during Operation Market Garden. His story was published in After the Battle magazine. He became interested in military operations in Greece during World War II, and his research resulted in publishing Behind the Lines in Greece: The Story of OSS Operational Group II. His book tells the previously untold story of two officers and 22 enlisted men who served behind the lines in Greece in 1944. Some were American citizens born of Greek immigrants. Most were non-citizens; some illegal immigrants, who would earn citizenship by serving with OSS in their homeland. His papers contain documents, photographs, and maps of his research.

The U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center received the donation of a Congressional Medal of Honor from Mr. Edward A. Allworth of New York City. Mr. Allworth is the son of Major Edward C. Allworth who was awarded the medal for actions along the Meuse River on November 5, 1918. His citation reads as follows:

While his company was crossing the Meuse River and canal at a bridgehead opposite Clery-le-Petit, the bridge over the canal was destroyed by shell fire, and Capt. Allworth’s command became separated, part of it being on the east bank of the canal and the remainder on the west bank. Seeing his advance units making slow headway up the steep slope ahead, this officer mounted the canal bank and called for his men to follow. Plunging in, he swam across the canal under fire from the enemy, followed by his men. Inspiring his men by his example of gallantry, he led them up the slope, joining his hard-pressed platoons in front. By his personal leadership, he forced the enemy back for more than a kilometer, overcoming machinegun nests and capturing 100 prisoners, whose number exceeded that of the men in his command. The exceptional courage and leadership displayed by Capt. Allworth made possible the re-establishment of a bridgehead over the canal and the successful advance of other troops.

Major Allworth was later awarded the Italian Cross, Legion of Honor, and Award of Prince Danilo for these actions. In 1945, Major Allworth received the Purple Heart for his service during WWII. Mr. Allworth’s son donated the medals and papers relating to his father’s service to USAHEC to preserve his father’s legacy for future generations.
