NOTE ON CASUALTIES

See the table on pg. 94 of General Pershing's "Report," which tallies losses up to the 21 Jun 1916 battle at Carrizal. According to the report of the Chief of Staff in Annual Reports of War Dept, 1917, Vol. I (UA24A145), p. 141, after Carrizal "no movement or action of importance on the part of our troops in Mexico occurred during the remainder of their stay." Therefore, the casualties reported by General Pershing should be fairly accurate. However, when comparing his figures with the casualties reported in 1916 by the Surgeon General, appearing on p. 483 of War Dept Reports, 1917, discrepancies appear between the two sets of data. To resolve them may require consulting records of the AGO in the National Archives.
